McNARY-HAUGEN BILL FACES PROBABLE VETO

VOTE ON PASSAGE IN HOUSE STOOD AT 204 TO 121

SUPPORTERS FAIL TO SECURE
TWO-THIRDS VOTE TO OVER-RIDE VETO

NOW REGARDED INEVITABLE AS
EQUALIZATION FEE
REMAINS

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, May 4. — McNary-Haugen farm relief bill supporters failed to secure the two-thirds in the house which is necessary to override a veto by President Coolidge, now regarded as inevitable since the equalization fee remains in the measure.

The vote on passage of the measure last night, 204 to 121, indicates very clearly the house could not pass the measure over a veto. Two-thirds in each body is required for passage over a veto. The senate farm bloc marshaled the two-thirds when it approved the bill a few weeks ago.

The measure now goes to conference to adjust minor differences in form as passed by house and senate. It should be in President Coolidge's hands early next week.

It was significant that 100 members did not vote last night. The absentee vote must be taken into consideration in forecasting probable action in case of a veto. The house passed the bill in the last congress by a vote of 214 to 178, only 43 members failing to vote at that time.

The farm bloc recovered from its defeat Wednesday when the equalization fee was voted out of the bill, and all day yesterday voted down, with machine-like precision, all amendments except two which sponsors of the measure accepted. One of these, supported by the cotton bloc, would prevent operation of the equalization fee upon any commodity without approval of the commodity council.

The bill as passed sets up a federal farm board to handle surplus crop operations. When there is a surplus, this board would estimate the surplus, remove it from the domestic market by dumping it abroad, thus raising the domestic price, and then assess an equalization fee or tax against the farmers to cover losses in sale of the surplus. This President Coolidge holds as unconstitutional.

The bill provides a $400,000,000 revolving fund with which to conduct surplus operations.

L. A. FRITSCH ENDORSED BY F-L FOR GOVERNOR

NEW ULM MAN RECEIVES EN-DORSEMENT OF THE

INDICATES BATTLE AT PRIMARY
FOR THIRD PARTY
NOMINATION

St. Paul, May 4. — (UP) — L. A. Fritsche, New Ulm, was Thursday given the endorsement of the farmer-labor party in the race for governor.

Endorsement of Fritsche, a dark horse, for the post indicates a battle at the primary for the third party nomination. Ernest Lundeen, former congressman, has already filed for the post and friends predict that he will refuse to withdraw from the race in favor of the New Ulm candidate.

The decision to give support to Fritsche was reached at a meeting of the state central committee after Floyd B. Olson, Minneapolis attorney, had refused a final request that he become the third party's standard-bearer in the gubernatorial race. Olson was named as the party candidate at the state convention six weeks ago but refused to accept the endorsement.

The committee waited until late Thursday afternoon in the hope that Olson would accept after a report had reached the meeting in the morning that he would reconsider the proposal.

Candidates for other places on the third party state ticket who were endorsed by the state convention and have indicated their acceptance are:

Mrs. Susie Stageberg, Red Wing, for secretary of state; C. F. Gaarenstrom, Fairmont, for attorney general, and J. L. Peterson, Proctor, for railroad and warehouse commissioner.

Ernest Lundeen, Minneapolis, former member of congress, was considered for the gubernatorial nomination, but a majority of the committee felt that he had eliminated himself for endorsement by already having filed for the nomination.

TROTSKY IS REPORTED ALIVE AND HEALTHY

REPORTS COME TO RELIABLE QUARTERS IN BERLIN

HIS HEART AILMENT, HOWEVER,
MAKES FRIENDS
ANXIOUS

By FREDERICK KUH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, May 4. — The first direct authentic news of Leon Trotsky, former Russian co-dictator, to reach the outer world since his arrival at his distant place of exile, has just come to reliable private quarters in Berlin.

It includes the authoritative statement that Trotsky is alive and healthy, except for the heart ailment from which he has been suffering for several years, and which lately has been causing some anxiety to his friends.

This news disposed of reports of attempts to assassinate Trotsky, and of his alleged flight from exile.

The same trustworthy source, however, received news that two of Trotsky's political adjutants, including one of his former secretaries, were arrested by Soviet authorities en route.

The news regarding Trotsky concerned principally the alleged loss of all his baggage, containing invaluable documents relating to the momentous years during which he and Nikolai Lenin were at the helm of Russian government.

While Trotsky was travelling to Vienna, his distant place of banishment near the Chinese-Turkistan frontier, official Soviet reports spoke of peasants' wonder at the luxury in which he proceeded, and the amount of baggage he carried.

The United Press learns that he carried a quantity of baggage, but it is claimed that not a single piece of it ever reached here. Reports variously estimated the number of suitcases and boxes he took as between sixteen and seventy. All were lost, strayed or stolen during the journey, he complained.

Upon being informed that his baggage could not be found, Trotsky waited several days after his arrival before acting. Convinced that the disappearance was not due to chance Trotsky is said then to have written to the politbureau, the innermost cabinet of the Soviet union, whose eight members are the highest authority of the country. He protested against his treatment and referred bitterly to his baggage, immediate return of which he demanded.

The politbureau, it is said, phlegmatically informing Trotsky that his complaint evidently had been communicated to the wrong authority, and advising him that the matter had been referred to the Soviet railway administration, which was responsible for recovering lost baggage.

To this day Trotsky never has regained his missing possessions. Instead, however, he is said to have received a communication from the railway administration, laconically delivering to him the sum of 1,000 roubles ($500) "as compensation for the lost crates."

Documents packed in the missing crates, which now are in unknown hands, included some of great personal and political value. It is believed certain, however, that before his expulsion from Moscow, Trotsky concealed the most valuable of his documents among close friends.

MINNESOTA RRUNK HIGHWAYS ARE NEARLY ALL GOOD

St. Paul, May 4. — (UP) — Minnesota trunk highways are nearly all good, and all routes are passable, according to the weekly condition report issued by the State Highway department today. The spring break-up is nearly over, but there are still many stretches which are not safe for heavy loads.

A majority of the load restrictions have been removed.

FAIL TO MAKE NEW SUSTAINED FLIGHT RECORDS

By United Press
Two daring war-trained pilots have failed in their individual attempts to establish new sustained flight records in widely separated parts of the country.

One, however, was able to break the existing sustained flight record for a solo flight—a record that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh established in remaining in the air 33½ hours on his memorable flight from New York to Paris.

Lieut. Royal Thomas, formerly of the Canadian flying force, descended at 11:50 o'clock last night. He had been in the air about 35 hours and mechanical trouble was given as the cause for the landing. He had remained flying over Roosevelt Field, L. I.

At Chickasha, Okla., Joe Hart, a former pilot in the American army, remained in the air only from morning until noon when defective parts caused him to descend.

Both plan other attempts at the record of almost 54 hours established recently by Eddie Stinson and Captain George Haldeman.

All of the latter day sustained flight records have been held by two man teams of flyers who relieved one another at the controls as the monotonous journey continued.

AMENDMENTS UP TO THE TAX REDUCTION BILL

3 MOVEMENTS ARE APPROVED
BY THE ADMINIS-TRATION

DEMOCRATIC MINORITY SEEKS REDUCTION IN CORPORA-TION TAX

Washington, May 4. — (UP) — Three movements to amend the $203,000,000 tax reduction bill approved by the administration got under way today in the senate.

The democratic minority, led by Senator Simmons of North Carolina, prepared to fight for an 11½ per cent corporation tax. The bill now calls for a 12½ per cent levy, one per cent lower than the prevailing 13½.

Senator McMaster, republican of South Dakota, proposed to introduce another amendment intended to give agriculture additional tariff protection. He enlisted the support of independent republicans and a few democrats.

Eastern republicans championed a third amendment by Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, for repeal of the estate tax. Such an amendment was considered but rejected by the finance committee.

None of the proposed changes in the revenue measure were believed to have more than an outside chance for adoption. Simmons was admittedly pessimistic about the possibility of further reducing the corporation tax.

Leaders expect to dispose of the tax reduction measure early next week and resume the Boulder Dam debate.

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, May 4. — A furious snowstorm last night damaged the hangar destined to house the Italian Polar dirigible Italia.

In consequence, the weather bureau has advised General Umberto Nobile, her commander, to postpone his departure from Vadsø, scheduled for 6 P. M. today.

It was snowing slightly when 11 Italians and a special detachment of 48 Norwegian army officers and men moored the Italia after she had circled the field once.

Vadsø was gayly decorated for the occasion, and the populace was greatly impressed by the big dirigible.

The Italia's route to Kings Bay is expected to be via Janafjord, Gamvik and Bear's Island.

SENATOR WALSH TO LEAVE FIELD FOR GOV. SMITH

SENATOR JAMES A. REED OF
MISSOURI IS IN FIGHT
TO STAY

WALSH DEFEATED BY BOTH
REED AND SMITH IN CALI-
FORNIA PRIMARIES

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 4. — (UP) — Senator Walsh of Montana soon may retire from the democratic presidential race in favor of Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

Senator James A. Reed of Missouri is in the fight to stay and will not release his Missouri delegates.

Senator Heflin's repeated solo attacks upon Smith in the senate have gained the open support of Senator Simmons of North Carolina, and will continue.

Walsh's friends have counseled him to remove himself from Smith's path. He himself will make no public statement of his intentions but says he will have a statement within a few days. His defeat by both Smith and Reed in the California primaries, coupled with the delicate democratic situation in his home state may induce him to make a public statement of his retirement.

From the first, Walsh's friends have felt his candidacy was misunderstood. It had been said by his opponents that he was making himself a cats-paw for William G. McAdoo, old foe of Smith.

Reed's situation is different. He has Missouri's 36 delegates in his pocket. His nation-wide campaign tour in behalf of the party prompted enthusiastic receptions everywhere.

Heflin is undismayed by the prospect of Smith's nomination or the question of what he himself will do politically if Smith is nominated. After the result of the California primary, he yesterday renewed his attack upon Smith and gained the open support of Senator Simmons.

Heflin for a long time has looked to Simmons for counsel in attacks upon the Smith candidacy, and for the future they are expected to work together more closely.

There has been talk among democratic leaders about the possibility that Simmons would advance Heflin as a third party nominee if Smith gets the nomination, but as yet there have been no confirmations of such reports.

SENATOR BORAH WONDERING WHAT TO DO WITH FUND

Washington, May 4. — (UP) — Senator Borah intends to let the republican national convention at Kansas City decide what shall be done with the $7,000 odd which he collected in an effort to repay Harry F. ### JAMES SORENSON, DAIRY LEADER, DIES AT ST. PAUL

MANY FOREIGN CIVILIANS SLAIN, DETAILS LACKING

BATTLE AT TSINAN ENDED AT 6
A. M. TODAY, CHINESE
WITHDRAWING

REPORTED JAPANESE HAD RE-
PELLED NATIONALIST
ATTACKS

Shanghai, May 4. — (UP) — The battle between Japanese and Chinese troops at Tsinan ended at 6 A. M. today when General Chiang Kai Shek recalled his Chinese troops, according to Japanese wireless reports.

Many foreign civilians were murdered, the reports said. Details were lacking.

There were several Americans still in the Tsinan quarters but the American embassy here has not yet been advised of their fate.

The reports here said that Japanese forces had repelled the nationalist army during Thursday night and that somewhat of a calm had prevailed.

Later, however, the report said, the looters succeeded in entering the safety zone of the city. This was reserved for the foreigners who had remained in Tsinan.

The murders followed and there was a general looting of the safety zone.

Tokio, May 4. — Japan moved fresh forces and munitions towards Tsinan, China, today, after reports were received here of a clash between Japanese expeditionary forces and troops of the Chinese nationalist army.

Advices here said one Japanese soldier and one Japanese civilian had been killed in the fighting and one officer and 33 privates were wounded.

Chinese casualties were estimated at 800.

An immediate shipment of munitions from the Kumamoto depot also was ordered.

Reports here said that more than 100 Japanese nationals had been murdered outside of the Chinese city. There was no confirmation to this report.

By HAROLD P. MILLS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Shanghai, May 4. — Nationalists, embarked on a triumphant spring offensive that has brought them within 240 miles of Peking, are confronted with a material depreciation of popular support in their own territory.

Nationalist officials in Shanghai are lavish of predictions that by the end of the season's fighting they will be in Peking. But other and less interested sources doubt whether they can win a decisive victory—or that any solution to the war but compromise is possible.

As they advance toward Peking, the nationalists come nearer to Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian warlord and outstanding figure among the many "strong men" in Chinese war and politics.

Secondly, they advance further from their base.

Thirdly, they are not getting from their southern supporters the aid once accorded them, and there is a great doubt whether the merchants and bankers of Shanghai—upon whom falls the main burden of supporting the army of Chiang Kai-Shek, nationalist generalissimo, and his subordinates—will continue to furnish the necessary money.

Shanghai's people have been taxed heavily to meet the military expenses of the nationalist government, and they are none too enthusiastic over the present drive.

Many people are beginning to feel that, after all, there is little difference between "north" and "south." There is no great issue like the American slavery one; it is a war of rival generals, fighting for power. The slogan of China for the Chinese, that carried the nationalists for so long, has been adopted in large measure by all chiefs, and foreign governments seem reconciled to doing business with China on much better terms, for her.

As this sentiment appears to grow, the nationalist government is short of funds. T. V. Soong, minister of finance, is reported to have succeeded in raising some $12,000,000 from Chinese bankers, with customs duties. (Continued on Page 2)

Senator McMaster, republican of South Dakota, proposed to introduce another amendment intended to give agriculture additional tariff protection. He enlisted the support of independent republicans and a few democrats.

Eastern republicans championed a third amendment by Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, for repeal of the estate tax. Such an amendment was considered but rejected by the finance committee.

None of the proposed changes in the revenue measure were believed to have more than an outside chance for adoption. Simmons was admittedly pessimistic about the possibility of further reducing the corporation tax.

Leaders expect to dispose of the tax reduction measure early next week and resume the Boulder Dam debate.

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, May 4. —A furious snowstorm last night damaged the hangar destined to house the Italian Polar dirigible Italia.

In consequence, the weather bureau has advised General Umberto Nobile, her commander, to postpone his departure from Vadsø, scheduled for 6 P. M. today.

It was snowing slightly when 11 Italians and a special detachment of 48 Norwegian army officers and men moored the Italia after she had circled the field once.

Vadsø was gayly decorated for the occasion, and the populace was greatly impressed by the big dirigible.

The Italia's route to Kings Bay is expected to be via Janafjord, Gamvik and Bear's Island.

SENATOR WALSH TO LEAVE FIELD FOR GOV. SMITH

SENATOR JAMES A. REED OF
MISSOURI IS IN FIGHT
TO STAY

WALSH DEFEATED BY BOTH
REED AND SMITH IN CALI-
FORNIA PRIMARIES

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 4. —(UP)—Senator Walsh of Montana soon may retire from the democratic presidential race in favor of Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

Senator James A. Reed of Missouri is in the fight to stay and will not release his Missouri delegates.

Senator Heflin's repeated solo attacks upon Smith in the senate have gained the open support of Senator Simmons of North Carolina, and will continue.

Walsh's friends have counseled him to remove himself from Smith's path. He himself will make no public statement of his intentions but says he will have a statement within a few days. His defeat by both Smith and Reed in the California primaries, coupled with the delicate democratic situation in his home state may induce him to make a public statement of his retirement.

From the first, Walsh's friends have felt his candidacy was misunderstood. It had been said by his opponents that he was making himself a cats-paw for William G. McAdoo, old foe of Smith.

Reed's situation is different. He has Missouri's 36 delegates in his pocket. His nation-wide campaign tour in behalf of the party prompted enthusiastic receptions everywhere.

Heflin is undismayed by the prospect of Smith's nomination or the question of what he himself will do politically if Smith is nominated. After the result of the California primary, he yesterday renewed his attack upon Smith and gained the open support of Senator Simmons.

Heflin for a long time has looked to Simmons for counsel in attacks upon the Smith candidacy, and for the future they are expected to work together more closely.

There has been talk among democratic leaders about the possibility that Simmons would advance Heflin as a third party nominee if Smith gets the nomination, but as yet there have been no confirmations of such reports.

MANY FOREIGN CIVILIANS SLAIN, DETAILS LACKING

BATTLE AT TSINAN ENDED AT 6
A. M. TODAY, CHINESE
WITHDRAWING

REPORTED JAPANESE HAD RE-
PELLED NATIONALIST
ATTACKS

Shanghai, May 4. —(UP)—The battle between Japanese and Chinese troops at Tsinan ended at 6 A. M. today when General Chiang Kai Uheko recalled his Chinese troops, according to Japanese wireless reports.

Many foreign civilians were murdered, the reports said. Details were lacking.

There were several Americans still in the Tsinan quarters but the American embassy here has not yet been advised of their fate.

The reports here said that Japanese forces had repelled the nationalist army during Thursday night and that somewhat of a calm had prevailed.

Later, however, the report said, the looters succeeded in entering the safety zone of the city. This was reserved for the foreigners who had remained in Tsinan.

The murders followed and there was a general looting of the safety zone.

Tokio, May 4.—Japan moved fresh forces and munitions towards Tsinan, China, today, after reports were received here of a clash between Japan expeditionary forces and troops of the Chinese nationalist army.

Advices here said one Japanese soldier and one Japanese civilian had been killed in the fighting and one officer and 33 privates were wounded. Chinese casualties were estimated at 800.

An immediate shipment of munitions from the Kumamoto depot also was ordered.

Reports here said that more than 100 Japanese nationals had been murdered outside of the Chinese city. There was no confirmation to this report.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Shanghai, May 4. —Nationalists, embarked on a triumphant spring offensive that has brought them within 240 miles of Peking, are confronted with a material depreciation of popular support in their own territory.

Nationalist officials in Shanghai are lavish of predictions that by the end of the season's fighting they will be in Peking. But other and less interested sources doubt whether they can win a decisive victory—or that any solution to the war but compromise is possible.

As they advance toward Peking, the nationalists come nearer to Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian war lord and outstanding figure among the many "strong men" in Chinese war and politics.

Secondly, they advance further from their base.

Thirdly, they are not getting from their southern supporters the aid once accorded them, and there is a great doubt whether the merchants and bankers of Shanghai—upon whom falls the main burden of supporting the army of Chiang Kai-Shek, nationalist generalissimo, and his subordinates—will continue to furnish the necessary money.

Shanghai's people have been taxed heavily to meet the military expenses of the nationalist government, and they are none too enthusiastic over the present drive.

Many people are beginning to feel that, after all, there is little difference between "north" and "south," there is no great issue like the American slavery one; it is a war of rival generals, fighting for power. The slogan of China for the Chinese, that carried the nationalists for so long, has been adopted in large measure by all chiefs, and foreign governments seem reconciled to doing business with China on much better terms, for her.

As this sentiment appears to grow, the nationalist government is short of funds. T. V. Soong, minister of finance, is reported to have succeeded in raising some $12,000,000 from Chinese bankers, with customs duties. (Continued on Page 9)

Some little time ago when Goodyear announced "The Greatest Tire in the World" we sat up and took notice.

Knowing Goodyear, that seemed to us a pretty sensational statement for such a long-established, solid company.

Now that we've seen the tire, tested it, and tried in vain to find something the matter with it, we add our bit to Goodyear's statement:

It's the most wonderfully designed and built tire we have ever seen. It's everything Goodyear said, and then some!

"The Greatest Tire in the World"

and then some!

Some little time ago when Goodyear announced "The Greatest Tire in the World" we sat up and took notice.

Knowing Goodyear, that seemed to us a pretty sensational statement for such a long-established, solid company.

Now that we've seen the tire, tested it, and tried in vain to find something the matter with it, we add our bit to Goodyear's statement:

It's the most wonderfully designed and built tire we have ever seen. It's everything Goodyear said, and then some!

Come in and see just how this new specially-designed tread, and the Goodyear SUPERTWIST carcass, brings a new day in balloon tire performance. Get the 1928 tire.

Norma Shearer and Novarro Head Cast Specially Chosen For "The Student Prince"

A "tailor-made cast"—this is how Ernst Lubitsch, famous screen director, describes the personnel of his latest production, "The Student Prince," now playing at the Lyceum theatre.

For not only was every member of the cast personally chosen by the director to fit into the character to be played as perfectly as a glove fits the hand—but even the extras—and there were approximately two thousand of them—went through the same close scrutiny and appraisal.

Secret Injury

A motion picture operator, back from photographing wild animals in interior Africa, recommends that form of sport on the ground that it does not inflict pain on the lion or elephant concerned. It is relatively safe, too, since taking its picture does not infuriate the animal as a bullet wound does. A lion or elephant having its picture taken seldom attacks, being unable to see the picture.

What Is a Tree?

Thanks to the experts in the forest reserve, distinction between a tree and a shrub has now been defined: the former must have a height of at least eight feet and a diameter of not less than two inches, otherwise it is a shrub.

MEN MASQUERADE IN LADYLESS WEDDING

Unique Entertainment Assured by The Harrison P. T. A.

AT U. C. T. HALL MAY 9-10

Male Shebas and Prima Donnas Gowned in Height of Fashion

"Male Shebas" and "Prima Donnas" gowned in the latest of fashions are expected to display pulchritude with the aid of powder and paint when "The Womanless Wedding" is staged at the U. C. T. hall, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, May 9 and 10 under auspices of the Harrison P. T. A. The feminine members of the audience are expected to pale with envy as the plot unfolds, for there is not a single woman in the entire cast of 80. This cast of female masqueraders has been selected from the eligible male population of Brainerd and the production is expected to prove a real laughmaker from start to finish.

Instructing the males in the intricacies of "queenly carriage" in high-heeled shoes, backless gowns and whatnot, Miss Esther Dee Ludwig, director for the Synopson Levie company of Bardonia, Kentucky, expects to convert huge masculine strides into dainty steps before the performance is given next week.

Such personages as Galli Curci, Mary Pickford, Theda Bara and Rosalie O'Grady are to be depicted by staid business men and other local talent who are looking forward with keen interest to a successful performance, now that they have been asked to participate.

There will be a bride and a groom, bridesmaids, groomsmen and everything that goes to make up a successful wedding. The identity of the groom is being withheld with great caution, probably as a surprise feature.

Watch for the miniature bride and groom in pantomime poses in J. Murphy's store window Saturday at 3 p. m. and in Alderman-Maghan's window at 7 p. m. Saturday evening.

Gone are the days when motorists were content to jog along at a moderate pace. Now, fine highways—white ribbons of concrete linking town to town—present an irresistible temptation to step on the gas and send the speedometer flying up.

Shell Motor Oil is competent to meet the strenuous demands of modern driving. Made from crude oils selected for their rich lubricating qualities—to specifications which provide an ample safety factor—by an improved process which avoids the destructive action of extreme heat—this oil has been scientifically refined to have just the right viscosity (body). ## A FINE CONCERT

THE concert sponsored by the Range Concert Orchestra and given at the People's Theatre at Crosby on Tuesday evening, May 1, was a memorable event and attested the proficiency attained by the performers. The work of the orchestra directed by William Knupple is admirable.

Tempo, harmony, all the essentials which mean so much to a finished production were in evidence. The interpretation of the various numbers fully indicated that Prof. Knupple is an artist and has the power to imbue his musicians with that sympathy of expression which brings out the best of any composition.

The Brainerd Ladies' band played well too, and under the guidance of the same conductor rendered several selections in a most pleasing manner. The final number, the "American Patrol" by Meeham, brought out the full harmony of orchestra and band and so insistent were calls of the audience that it was repeated.

Prof. Knupple and his wife have done much to instill in people a love for the best in music. The various musicians have been imbued with the desire to continue study and to perfect themselves. What must be built up on the range and in Brainerd and throughout the county is the large body of music lovers to support what is best in music.

In Brainerd the Musical club is doing a most worthy work and many of its members come from outside Brainerd. In the Crosby concert assisting talent included J. P. Galles and William Galles, Faye Hunter and Eva Hunter of the range and A. C. Mraz of Brainerd and their numbers, too, were most pleasing and were heartily applauded.

The concert as given was a decided success on the part of all performers. More people, however, should have taken the opportunity to attend, and to hear and encourage our home talent and by their presence indicate their interest in matters musical. The upbuilding of musical appreciation has its measure of importance in the life of any community, just as much as the material side of every day life.

It has often been said that the poet and musician who evolved the songs of a nation, we mean the real, enduring heart songs, often directed the destiny of that land. And coupled with the production of any music comes that essential of adequate interpretation and reception.

PROTECTION, IT SEEMS, IS LEGAL AFTER ALL

THE debate over the protective tariff has been going on a long time—a very long time indeed. Though lately it has grown quite feeble since the South, long the stronghold of free trade, has developed industries that want protection.

During all of that debate free traders have contended, among other things, that a tariff for protection of home industries was illegal; that the imposition of customs duties was a revenue measure, a tax measure, that should be conducted for revenue purposes only; and that the height of absurdity and illegality was reached in a customs duty so high that it prohibited imports and thus brought no revenue at all.

Well, that issue has been decided by the supreme court of the United States, and the decision leaves the free trader—if there is one left—without a legal leg to stand on.

This ruling came in the decision of the court upholding the provision of the current tariff law giving the president power to revise rates fifty per cent up or down.

One of the grounds on which this measure was attacked was that the very principle of protection itself is unconstitutional. This is what the court said about that:

The fact that congress declares that one of its motives in fixing the rates of duty is so to fix them that they should encourage the industries of this country in competition with producers in other countries in the sale of goods in this country cannot invalidate a revenue act so framed.

And that, so far as the debate on protection versus free trade is concerned—if there is, indeed, any such debate any more—seems to end discussion on a point that has been a factor in that debate since the days of Hamilton.—Duluth Herald.

ANOTHER CONVENTION FOR BRAINERD

ANOTHER convention for Brainerd is right in the offing. The First Baptist church, meeting at their annual session last night (Thursday) voted to invite the Associated Rally of the Northwestern Association of the Minnesota Baptist Convention to meet in Brainerd in May, 1929.

This will bring approximately 150 young people from all over the northern part of the state to Brainerd, also many noted speakers will come to take part in the program.

The rally is meeting this year at Little Falls May 4, 5 and 6. Twenty-five of the young people from the First Baptist church of Brainerd will be in attendance. This Friday evening there will be a banquet and tomorrow evening a Bible contest in which three of our Brainerd young people will take part, Miss Bertha Cain, Miss Mildred Vanderwerker and Miss Doris Storm.

The convention will be particularly welcome and will have much attention devoted to it, coming as it does early in our spring season and before the influx of tourists. Brainerd will appreciate entertaining this convention and will extend the support of other organizations to the church body.

Most of the delegates drive by car. International Falls this year sent a large delegation which motored the distance over comparatively good roads. Sixty are expected from Park Rapids. The orchestra of the Park Rapids First Baptist church will be in attendance to play at the meetings.

The rally at Little Falls will include a picnic at the historic grounds of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's home.

SIZING UP GUBERNATORIAL SITUATION

CHARLES B. CHENEY of the Minneapolis Journal sizes up the gubernatorial situation in this manner:

The Mankato Free Press thinks Floyd B. Olson's refusal to file for governor will end any serious possibility of the farmer-labor state ticket being "more than a perfunctory contender" in the state election next fall. It sees also an unfavorable effect on Senator Shipstead, who would have been helped by a strong running mate. The Free Press then says:

Interest in the gubernatorial situation will now center on the possibility of new entries in the field for the republican nomination. As it stands now Governor Christianson seems fairly well assured both of the nomination in June and of re-election next November—this not because many voters love the governor more, but because they love other candidates less.

AVOID LOUD TALK AT MILKING TIME

By loud talk or other unnecessary reasons the cow is blamed for not giving down her milk, as we call it, while the milker and not the cow is at fault, says Wallace S. Farmer.

The process of giving down the milk is governed largely by the nervous system of the cow. Anything that affects the nervous system of the cow affects her production. For this reason the milker has much to do with the amount of milk the cow gives. It is a recognized fact that the milk is manufactured during the few minutes occupied by the actual process of milking. This is the reason why the art of milking is of so much importance, and also the reason why the manner in which the cow gives down her milk is so largely influenced by the milker. It is also a reason why a cow should be prepared for milking before the actual process of milking begins, and also a reason why a cow properly milked three times a day will give more and richer milk than when milked only twice. It is also a reason why an excited cow fails to give down her milk freely and completely.

If the cow is approached quietly at milking time and is free from fear that she will be harmed the milk manufacturing organs work normally and at their best. The best method is to approach the cow in a quiet, friendly manner, wash the udder, teats and flank with a damp cloth. This rubbing of the udder before actually beginning milking stimulates the glands before the milking is commenced, therefore saving time to the milker.

Fall-Freshening Cows Best, Says Floridan

The dairyman who gets the best financial returns from his cows is the man who plans ahead far enough to have the majority of his cows freshen from September 15 to November 1 each year. This statement is backed up by John M. Scott, animal industrialist of the Florida experiment station.

The cows which freshen during this period are the cows that produce most milk when it is in most demand, and naturally brings a better price. The cow that freshens in the fall will likewise give the least amount of milk during the summer months when it is lower in price.

The dairyman who does not plan ahead and breed his cows from December 15 to February 1 each year will find himself faced with the facts that more of his cows will freshen in March and April than during the fall. In this case he will have his heaviest milk production at the season of the year when the demand is least. Now is a good time to make a start. Every dairyman who does not have a good bull should get busy and get one right away.

Good Grain Ration With Clover Hay for the Cows

Where clover hay only is available, the following mixture will make a balanced ration: Ground corn 600 pounds, wheat bran 300 pounds, linseed meal 100 pounds. Mix and feed one pound of the mixture for each three to four pounds of milk produced by each cow.

Cows producing milk testing from 3 to 3.5 per cent fat should get about one pound of the mixture for each four pounds of milk produced by each cow while those producing milk testing about 5 per cent should get one pound of the grain mixture for each three pounds of milk produced.

When silage is not available it is not advisable to feed cottonseed meal to dairy cows since the cottonseed meal has a binding effect on the bowels which may cause trouble.

Hired help is the costliest item in milk production.

Calf scours is caused principally by infection that calves may receive from many sources if they are not given careful attention.

"Scoop shovel" feeding of dairy cows is unprofitable. A good practice is to feed each cow one pound of grain mixture for every three or four pounds of milk produced.

Test your separator once in awhile by taking a sample of the skim in to the cream buyer, or by sending some to your state agricultural college.

The best time to separate is just after milking when the temperature is right. If the milk does get cold it will pay to set the vessel in warm water and get it up to 90 degrees at least, before running it through the separator.

On one experiment with Holstein heifers, heavily-fed animals came in to their first heat nearly four months earlier than tight-fed ones, and with Jerseys heavy feeding hastened their sexual maturity about two and one half months.

Several thousand tablets were discovered in a palace and a temple used as a record office by German archeologists some years ago, but early attempts at reading them were hampered because the different languages were not sorted out. Writers of long records on the baked tablets were careful to indicate the sequence from one tablet to the next, and usually at the end of the document the author wrote his name, his profession and place of residence, in modern fashion.—Washington Star.

Indoor ferns as a rule have few insect or disease enemies, but when they do get into trouble no time should be lost in taking effective remedial steps, a writer in House and Garden asserts. This bit of advice, indeed, applies to all plants, whether growing in the house or outdoors.

Perhaps the commonest fern enemy is scale on the stems or leaves. When the infestation appears the plants ought to be turned upside down (of course, holding the soil and roots so that they cannot fall out of the pots) and dipped in a pail filled with a mixture of one ounce of nicotine solution and one-half ounce of soap dissolved in water. After dipping the plants should be kept in the shade for 24 hours. A weekly spraying with the same mixture is an advisable supplementary procedure.

In case the scale infestation has made much headway before discovery, it will be well to remove entirely the most affected fronds before administering the prescribed treatment.

One could tell by the expression of disgust on his countenance that he was not thoroughly enjoying the Saturday afternoon shopping tour with his wife. His arms were loaded with packages and with a weary posture he slumped against a counter while the wife fumbled among some ribbons to find a certain color or shade. After a long time handling the merchandise, she turned and said:

"Well, we will just have to go somewhere else."

"Great smoke!" exclaimed the husband who flushed with impatience. "Have you ever in your life found the thing you sought in the first store you entered?"

While the wife tried to explain the importance of finding an exact shade of ribbon, the saleswoman chuckled inwardly and another husband or two passing cheered the sentiment.

The word fireproof is probably a less appropriate term than fire resistive. Buildings can be constructed so that they can withstand a complete burning out of contents without any collapse of structural members. There will, of course, be damage to finish and trim. They can also be constructed to withstand exposure from fires in adjacent buildings without communicating fire to the inside of the building, although here again there may be damage to facing material and window glass and shutters. Fire-resistive buildings greatly decrease the destructiveness of fires in providing less likelihood of rapid spread, greater ease of extinguishment, and less hazard to neighboring structures.

The car had broken down and the pair of legs protruding from underneath seemed to indicate that repairs were in progress.

"Had a breakdown?" inquired a passerby.

"Oh, no, only playing hide-and-seek with the works," came a muffled voice from underneath the car. But the questioner was not easily daunted.

"What power car is it?"

"Forty horse."

"What's wrong with it?"

"Well, as far as I know," came the answer, "thirty-nine horses have bolted, and the remaining one is too upset to answer questions."

Held "Dead" Language Had Peculiar Charm

Children of the Hittite race who went to school in Asia Minor about 1000 B. C. had to learn dead languages just as the modern schoolboy learns Latin. Baked clay tablets found in the capital city of the ancient Hittite empire have been deciphered by scholars who say that eight languages are represented on them, written in the neat, wedge-shaped characters known as cuneiform writing.

The Sumerian language was then long dead, but the Hittites learned it and taught it to their children because they believed that charms sung in the old language were peculiarly effective. In some of the tablets the Sumerian text is followed by columns containing the same text translated into official Hittite language and into Babylonian and also a column pronouncing the Sumerian words. Babylonian was apparently the language of diplomacy among the Hittites.

Several thousand tablets were discovered in a palace and a temple used as a record office by German archeologists some years ago, but early attempts at reading them were hampered because the different languages were not sorted out. Writers of long records on the baked tablets were careful to indicate the sequence from one tablet to the next, and usually at the end of the document the author wrote his name, his profession and place of residence, in modern fashion.—Washington Star.

The cows which freshen during this period are the cows that produce most milk when it is in most demand, and naturally brings a better price. The cow that freshens in the fall will likewise give the least amount of milk during the summer months when it is lower in price.

The dairyman who does not plan ahead and breed his cows from December 15 to February 1 each year will find himself faced with the facts that more of his cows will freshen in March and April than during the fall. In this case he will have his heaviest milk production at the season of the year when the demand is least. Now is a good time to make a start. Every dairyman who does not have a good bull should get busy and get one right away.

Good Grain Ration With

Clover Hay for the Cows.

Where clover hay only is available, the following mixture will make a balanced ration: Ground corn 600 pounds, wheat bran 300 pounds, linseed meal 100 pounds. Mix and feed one pound of the mixture for each three to four pounds of milk produced by each cow.

Cows producing milk testing from 3 to 3.5 per cent fat should get about one pound of the mixture for each four pounds of milk produced by each cow while those producing milk testing about 5 per cent should get one pound of the grain mixture for each three pounds of milk produced.

When silage is not available it is not advisable to feed cottonseed meal to dairy cows since the cottonseed meal has a binding effect on the bowels which may cause trouble.

Dairy Notes

Hired help is the costliest item in milk production.

Calf scours is caused principally by infection that calves may receive from many sources if they are not given careful attention.

"Scrap shovel" feeding of dairy cows is unprofitable. A good practice is to feed each cow one pound of grain mixture for every three or four pounds of milk produced.

Test your separator once in awhile by taking a sample of the skin in to the cream buyer, or by sending some to your state agricultural college.

The best time to separate is just after milking when the temperature is right. If the milk does get cold it will pay to set the vessel in warm water and get it up to 90 degrees at least, before running it through the separator.

On one experiment with Holstein heifers, heavily-fed animals came into their first heat nearly four months earlier than light-fed ones, and with Jerseys heavy feeding hastened their sexual maturity about two and one-half months.

Held "Dead" Language
Had Peculiar Charm

Children of the Hittite race who went to school in Asia Minor about 1000 B. C. had to learn dead languages just as the modern schoolboy learns Latin. Baked clay tablets found in the capital city of the ancient Hittite empire have been deciphered by scholars who say that eight languages are represented on them, written in the neat, wedge-shaped characters known as cuneiform writing.

The Sumerian language was then long dead, but the Hittites learned it and taught it to their children because they believed that charms sung in the old language were peculiarly effective. In some of the tablets the Sumerian text is followed by columns containing the same text translated into official Hittite language and into Babylonian and also a column pronouncing the Sumerian words. Babylonian was apparently the language of diplomacy among the Hittites.

Several thousand tablets were discovered in a palace and a temple used as a record office by German archeologists some years ago, but early attempts at reading them were hampered because the different languages were not sorted out. Writers of long records on the baked tablets were careful to indicate the sequence from one tablet to the next, and usually at the end of the document the author wrote his name, his profession and place of residence, in modern fashion.—Washington Star.

Mixture of Nicotine and Soap Helps Ferns

Indoor ferns as a rule have few insect or disease enemies, but when they do get into trouble no time should be lost in taking effective remedial steps, a writer in House and Garden asserts. This bit of advice, indeed, applies to all plants, whether growing in the house or outdoors.

Perhaps the commonest fern enemy is scale on the stems or leaves. When the infestation appears the plants ought to be turned upside down (of course, holding the soil and roots so that they cannot fall out of the pots) and dipped in a pail filled with a mixture of one ounce of nicotine solution and one-half ounce of soap dissolved in water. After dipping, the plants should be kept in the shade for 24 hours. A weekly spraying with the same mixture is an advisable supplementary procedure.

In case the scale infestation has made much headway before discovery, it will be well to remove entirely the most affected fronds before administering the prescribed treatment.

Worn to Ribbons

One could tell by the expression of disgust on his countenance that he was not thoroughly enjoying the Saturday afternoon shopping tour with his wife. His arms were loaded with packages and with a weary posture he slumped against a counter while the wife fumbled among some ribbons to find a certain color or shade. After a long time handling the merchandise, she turned and said:

"Well, we will just have to go somewhere else."

"Great smoke!" exclaimed the husband who flushed with impatience, "have you ever in your life found the thing you sought in the first store you entered?"

While the wife tried to explain the importance of finding an exact shade of ribbon, the saleswomen chuckled inwardly and another husband or two passing cheered the sentiment.

Resistance to Fire

The word fireproof is probably a less appropriate term than fire resistant. Buildings can be constructed so that they can withstand a complete burning out of contents without any collapse of structural members. There will, of course, be damage to finish and trim. They can also be constructed to withstand exposure from fires in adjacent buildings without communicating fire to the inside of the building, although here again there may be damage to facing material and window glass and shutters. Fire-resistant buildings greatly decrease the destructiveness of fires in providing less likelihood of rapid spread, greater ease of extinguishment, and less hazard to neighboring structures.

The Trouble

The car had broken down and the pair of legs protruding from underneath seemed to indicate that repairs were in progress.

"Had a breakdown?" inquired a passerby.

"Oh, no, only playing hide-and-seek with the works," came a muffled voice from underneath the car. But the questioner was not easily daunted.

"What power car is it?"

"Forty horse."

"What's wrong with it?"

"Well, as far as I know," came the answer, "thirty-nine horses have bolted, and the remaining one is too upset to answer questions."

Sound Waves

Light and electricity and sound are the results of entirely different vibrations or waves. Sound waves travel in gases, liquids and solids, and their speed varies according to the material, its temperature, etc. Light and electricity travel through a medium which we call the ether, and always at the same speed. There are other vibrations such as the X-rays and wireless telegraphy rays which are still different.

TONY PLEVA EXPLAINS RACE TO LOCAL ELKS

BRAINERD COMMITTEE TO PRO-VIDE REFEREE FOR SEC-TION OF COURSE

RACERS IN CANOE DERBY TO REACH BRAINERD EVENING
OF MAY 22

At a special meeting held last night at the Elks Club prior to the regular lodge session, A. F. Oppel, deputy commissioner of the State Forestry Department, and Tony Pleva, chairman of the Mississippi river canoe derby, explained what will be necessary on the part of the Brainerd committee to insure the success of the river classic.

Mr. Oppel is the clerk of the course and once the derby is under way he will have complete charge of the conduct of the event which is attracting national interest.

The Brainerd committee will provide a referee who will join the contestants at Grand Rapids and is to officiate until this city has been reached on the evening of May 22.

The local committee will also have judges and time keepers at Grand Rapids, Libby, Aitkin and in this city and the officials for the Grand Rapids control will meet the contestants at Ball Club so as to become acquainted with the manner in which the contest is to be run.

A program of sports which will also include a baseball game is to be arranged for the early afternoon of May 23 and the contestants are to be sent on their way to the next night control at Little Falls as early as possible after the program has been concluded.

Prizes of merchandise are to be given to the "pairs" which arrive at Brainerd first, second and third and a special committee has been appointed by Chairman R. G. Jenkins to procure these.

Purple flags with a white circle are to be placed along the river at the control points to guide the canoeists during the day and red flags will indicate the control stops after nightfall.

A special effort is to be made by the local committee to enlist entries for the "Canoe Derby" so that Brainerd may have one or more representatives in the race, thus adding considerable interest from a local standpoint. The entries are to close at 10 A. M. on May 10, so the committee has little time to lose. Every one of the river towns, some of which are much smaller than this city, have entered contestants.

Mr. Pleva stressed the fact that the general committee of the Elks lodge in Minneapolis is looking forward to this city for the co-operation needed to make the race the greatest sporting event of the year and stated that all that was needed at this time was an earnest effort to line up some entries from this city. Mr. Oppel explained the manner in which the local committee shall provide the various officials needed and assured the committee that if his instructions were followed out, Brainerd will have contributed their share toward the success of the derby.

Moving picture organizations are awaiting complete reports of the Brainerd program on May 23 and expect to make this city their headquarters for several days. The local committee which is to assist Exalted Ruler R. G. Jenkins, includes R. E. Wyett, Arthur J. Sullivan, J. J. Nolan, G. S. Swanson, O. A. Peterson, W. J. Lyons, B. L. Lagerquist, A. P. Drogseth, C. C. Van Essen, John J. Cummins and John A. Hoffbauer.

The race will start at Elk Lake in Itasca Park on Sunday, May 13, and will end in Minneapolis on Saturday, May 26, where cash prizes totaling $1,000 will be awarded.

CONTRACT OF FORMER CHAMPION COVERS A YEAR

PLAYS ROLE OF PRIZEFIGHTER IN A DRAMATIC PLAY

"THE BIG FIGHT" TO BE INTRO-DUCED IN NEW YORK
THIS FALL

New York, May 4.—(UP)—Jack Dempsey has signed a contract to fight two rounds every night for a year.

The former heavyweight champion has agreed to play the role of a prizefighter in a dramatic play entitled, "The Big Fight," by Max Marcin and Milton Herbert Gropp, which will be produced in New York this fall by Sam Harris and Albert Lewis under the personal direction of David Belasco.

Estelle Taylor, Dempsey's wife, will play the leading role, that of a manicure girl. They will receive, it is said, the biggest salary ever paid to anyone on the stage, exceeding the previous high sum of $12,000 a week paid to Al Jolson.

The play will go into rehearsals last week in August and will open on Broadway in September.

Dempsey is enthusiastic about the play and will go through a period of training to condition himself for his role.

Dempsey said that his contract would permit him to take several weeks off if he decided to fight again.

"However, I don't think I'll box again," he said.

Yesterday's Hero—Ed Morris, rookie right-hander of the Boston Red Sox, who let the Philadelphia Athletics down with four hits stopping Connie Mack's club at seven straight victories. The Red Sox got only six hits off Ossie Orvill, but they were enough to give Boston a victory, 3 to 1. Cobb's double in the seventh was the first hit off Morris, and only one man, Cochrane on a walk, reached first in the first six innings.

Flint Rhem kept the Reds' nine hits fairly well scattered and the St. Louis Cardinals broke a losing streak of four games by beating Cincinnati, 7 to 5. Taylor Douthit made four hits in four times at bat and Jim Bottomley made three in four trips.

STOREROOM WINS OVER NASH-FINCH

BOTH TEAMS DO SOME HEAVY
HITTING; ERRORS SPELL
DEFEAT FOR LATTER

The N. P. Storeroom chalked up their second victory of the season last night by defeating the Nash-Finch Co., 18 to 9. Both teams did some heavy hitting but errors led to the downfall of the Nash-Finch men.

Whitlock, pitching for the Storeroom, allowed eight hits and struck out three. Avery, hurling for the losers, allowed twelve hits and struck out one.

Tonight the American Railway Express Co. will play the O'Brien Mercantile Co.

Baseball fans, speculating on the next member of the Giants to go the way of Hornsby and McQuade, have settled on John McGraw and McQuade's statement seems to indicate that there is an internal battle going on among the club officials which the public never has learned about.

McGraw announced in Cincinnati that he would accept a new two year contract but had refused one for five years.

From several sources have come the information that McGraw is manager of the Giants in name only, and that Stoneham rules the "Little Napoleon" with a mailed fist.

The trouble which led to the trading of Hornsby, the ousting of McQuade and which threatens to involve McGraw, is said to have started during the Giants' desperate drive towards the close of the season.

McGraw at that time was ill and Hornsby was managing the Giants. The night after the Giants lost the first game of a 5-game series to the Pirates, Stoneham is said to have called Hornsby to his room and criticized his handling of the team.

Hornsby refused to abide by Stoneham's demands, and was supported by McQuade and later it is said by McGraw. The result apparently is that Stoneham did away with Hornsby and McQuade and the baseball world is wondering if McGraw, who has managed the Giants for 26 years, is next.

Cincinnati, May 4.—(UP)—John McGraw has let it be known here that he soon will sign a new two year contract to manage the New York Giants but has refused a five year contract that had been tendered him.

He made the statement to newspapermen and President Charles A. Stoneham of the club who was in the room at the time. McGraw said he was not certain the club would desire his services for the longer period.

The Eddies—Brown and Farrell—accounted for the Boston Braves' 5 to 4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the opening intersection

NINTH DISTRICT ROTARY MEETING

1,000 Delegates Complete Ballotting for District Governor, 2 Candidates at Superior

PARADE AT NOON HOUR

Brainerd Delegation Attracts Much Attention With Brainerd Ladies' Band

Results of balloting on two candidates nominated for governor of the Ninth Rotary district at the opening session of the 1928 district conference at Superior Thursday, will be announced at the close of meetings today. Dr. A. E. Hocking of Devils Lake, N. D., and Phil Sheridan of Rochester, Minn., are the nominees. The opening day's sessions yesterday were featured by the annual governor's banquet held last night in the Great Northern building in Superior at which Hanford Cox of Cloquet, retiring governor, was the principal speaker.

Today the 1,000 delegates, many of them accompanied by their wives and families, will complete conference sessions and return to their homes throughout the district. Plans also will be made at the concluding meetings for the attendance of various district delegations at the annual Rotary International convention June 18 to 28 at Minneapolis.

A formal invitation to the Mill City conclave was extended at the banquet last night by Arthur Larkin, chairman of the Minneapolis Rotary convention arrangements committee. Among speakers at the governor's feast were Frank L. Mulholland, past president of Rotary International, and Prof. Walter Hewitt of Oshkosh, Wis., State Teachers' College.

The Brainerd Ladies' Band led the large Brainerd delegation and occupied a prominent place in the parade which was started near the noon hour yesterday. Thousands lined Tower Avenue and gave the band and delegation much applause.

Rev. Sheridan Elected Governor Superior, Wis., May 4.—Rev. Geo. Phil Sheridan, of Rochester, was elected governor of the ninth Rotary district at the convention which closed here at noon today. He succeeds Hanford F. Cox, of Cloquet, Minn.

Rev. Sheridan defeated Dr. A. E. Hocking of Devils Lake, N. D., in a close contest. Although the ballots were cast late yesterday, the results were not made known until noon today.

The convention was attended by 712 delegates from Minnesota, North Dakota and Superior.

One of the final acts of the convention was to pass a resolution urging friendly relations between the United States and Canada.

Chief Executive Saw Point of Good Joke

One of the first things Washington learned of Millard Fillmore when he ascended to the Presidency upon the death of Zachary Taylor, in 1850, was that Fillmore possessed a keen sense of humor.

Shortly after taking the oath of office it became necessary that the President purchase a new coach. Because of the dignity of his position, Fillmore thought the coach should be somewhat out of the ordinary, and sent an old White House servant, Edward Moran by name, to shop about. Moran eventually learned that a wealthy citizen of Washington was about to leave the city and wished to dispose of his elegant equipage, which seemed to him quite the thing he was seeking.

The President viewed the coach and liked it immensely, but "How will it do for a President of the United States to be riding around in a second-hand carriage?" he asked Moran.

Moran could not resist the opportunity. "Sure," he replied, "you're only a second-hand President."

Fillmore thought this remark was one of the wittiest he had ever heard, and told it on himself so often that he became known among his friends as the "second-hand President." Incidentally, he bought the coach and used it during his three-year tenure of office.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Good Friday Beliefs in Parts of England

How Good Friday got its name is a matter that is often discussed. The word Friday is really the strangest part of the name of so solemn a date in the Christian calendar. Few realize that in saying Friday they are commemorating a pagan deity, Freya, the Scandinavian Venus.

In France Good Friday is called Passion Friday; in Germany, Quiet Friday; and in Italy, the Blessed Friday.

Good Friday in former days enabled the careful citizen to save his fire insurance policy, for it was believed that an egg laid on that day would extinguish any fire on which it was thrown.

Bread baked on Good Friday was supposed to have its protective value, for it was believed that three loaves put in a heap of corn would prevent the latter from being devoured by rats and mice. An infant born on Good Friday was supposed to possess the power of curing fevers.

There are some things to be avoided on Good Friday. West-country people consider it a sin to wash any clothes on that day. They declare that should you do so you are likely to lose your most valued possession before the year is out.—London Answers.

We Are All Egoes

An outstanding fact in life is that we bore each other; the habits and notions of many worthy people drive other fairly worthy people to distraction. Most books, most plays, most events public and private, bore us. Popularity is to be fairly agreeable to a few, and unknown to the many.

The old are tiresome to the young. I doubt if they realize it, but the young are tiresome to the old.

The time men and women do not devote to denouncing each other, they devote to seeking and boring each other. Always remember that whatever you do, and wherever you go, you are a pest to many. Therefore behave as well as possible.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Man's Limitation

Use what language you will, you can never say anything but what you are.—Emerson.

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting

By EDNA PURDY WALSH
Editor, Character Reading Magazine.

The Sociable Sweetheart

There are many who seem sociable in their home and friendship circles, but in general they may be retiring, and even diffident in the outside world.

The slanting writing is usually more sociable a way from home than the vertical or backhand writer.

If the slanting writer has a long hook to the beginning of the capital M or N, if the terminals of the writing are present, and not cut short, at the ends of words, if the o's and a's are open or lightly closed at the top, with fairly generous spacings between words and fairly generous margin, you may be sure the individual is sociable and expressive in the outside world, especially if the writing is reasonably large.

There will be few terminals or word endings which curl back to the left in the truly sociable person, for these take time, and mean a turning back to self. The writing of the sociable man or woman will either be straight or ascending—seldom descending.

Note.—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied. (Copyright.)

Chief Executive Saw Point of Good Joke

One of the first things Washington learned of Millard Fillmore when he ascended to the Presidency upon the death of Zachary Taylor, in 1850, was that Fillmore possessed a keen sense of humor.

Shortly after taking the oath of office it became necessary that the President purchase a new coach. Because of the dignity of his position, Fillmore thought the coach should be somewhat out of the ordinary, and sent an old White House servant, Edward Moran by name, to shop about. Moran eventually learned that a wealthy citizen of Washington was about to leave the city and wished to dispose of his elegant equipage, which seemed to him quite the thing he was seeking.

The President viewed the coach and liked it immensely, but "How will it do for a President of the United States to be riding around in a second-hand carriage?" he asked Moran.

Moran could not resist the opportunity. "Sure," he replied, "you're only a second-hand President."

Fillmore thought this remark was one of the wittiest he had ever heard, and told it on himself so often that he became known among his friends as the "second-hand President." Incidentally, he bought the coach and used it during his three-year tenure of office.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Good Friday Beliefs in Parts of England

How Good Friday got its name is a matter that is often discussed. The word Friday is really the strangest part of the name of so solemn a date in the Christian calendar. Few realize that in saying Friday they are commemorating a pagan deity, Freya, the Scandinavian Venus.

In France Good Friday is called Passion Friday; in Germany, Quiet Friday; and in Italy, the Blessed Friday.

Good Friday in former days enabled the careful citizen to save his fire insurance policy, for it was believed that an egg laid on that day would extinguish any fire on which it was thrown.

Bread baked on Good Friday was supposed to have its protective value, for it was believed that three loaves put in a heap of corn would prevent the latter from being devoured by rats and mice. An infant born on Good Friday was supposed to possess the power of curing fevers.

There are some things to be avoided on Good Friday. West-country people consider it a sin to wash any clothes on that day. They declare that should you do so you are likely to lose your most valued possession before the year is out.—London Answers.

We Are All Egoes

An outstanding fact in life is that we bore each other: the habits and notions of many worthy people drive other fairly worthy people to distraction. Most books, most plays, most events public and private, bore us. Popularity is to be fairly agreeable to a few, and unknown to the many.

The old are tiresome to the young. I doubt if they realize it, but the young are tiresome to the old.

The time men and women do not devote to denouncing each other, they devote to seeking and boring each other. Always remember that whatever you do, and wherever you go, you are a pest to many. Therefore behave as well as possible.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting

By EDNA PURDY WALSH
Editor, Character Reading Magazine.

The Sociable Sweetheart

There are many who seem sociable in their home and friendship circles, but in general they may be retiring, and even diffident in the outside world. The slanting writing is usually more sociable away from home than the vertical or backhand writer.

If the slanting writer has a long hook to the beginning of the capital M or N, if the terminals of the writing are present, and not cut short, at the ends of words, if the o's and a's are open or lightly closed at the top, with fairly generous spacings between words and fairly generous margin, you may be sure the individual is sociable and expressive in the outside world, especially if the writing is reasonably large.

There will be few terminals or word endings which curl back to the left in the truly sociable person, for these take time, and mean a turning back to self. The writing of the sociable man or woman will either be straight or ascending—seldom descending.

Note.—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied. (Copyright.)

TWO TRUCK LINES ARE SEEKING PERMITS

Wish to Operate in Territory, to Establish Local Terminals

HEARING SET MAY 8

State Railroad and Warehouse Commission to Consider Pleas

A hearing will be had at the court house on May 8 on the petition of J. N. Bollig for a permit from the State Railroad & Warehouse Commission to operate a truck line between the Twin Cities and Brainerd, as well as between the Twin Cities and Pierz.

The application for this permit was made to the commission by Mr. Bollig on March 16 of this year and on April 24 a similar application was filed by Raymond Brothers, whose headquarters are at St. Cloud. Mr. Bollig is a resident of Pierz and has been engaged in the trucking business for seven years. He is a comparatively young man who has forged rapidly ahead in this business until he now has a fleet of seven trucks and a large warehouse and repair shop at Pierz. He employs a force of twelve men in his business, which is rapidly growing. It is Mr. Bollig's intention, if he is successful in obtaining the permit applied for, to move to Brainerd and establish his headquarters here. He plans to construct a large modern freight terminal here, as well as a suitable building to house his trucks. His force of drivers and clerks will also be located in Brainerd.

At the last meeting of the Chamber of Commerce held on April 25, the Chamber passed a resolution endorsing the application of Mr. Bollig in preference to that of Raymond Brothers. The committee on industries reported that it had thoroughly investigated the matter and recommended that Mr. Bollig's application be approved by the Chamber.

Mr. Bollig has stated that he has carefully investigated the transportation situation at Brainerd and is favorably impressed that it affords a good opening for a truck line. He is no stranger here, as he has operated the Brainerd Produce Company, with headquarters on South Seventh street for some time, dealing in poultry and dairy products. He expects to employ in the neighborhood of fifteen men immediately, with additional help as the business demands. He also stated that additional trucks and truck trailers would be supplied so that he would at all times have on hand at the service of the public more than sufficient equipment.

If Mr. Bollig's application is granted, it will mark the location of another new industry in Brainerd. It will be the third this year, with the Hickerson Garment Factory and the Brainerd Boat Works. Many prominent business men have expressed themselves as being heartily in favor of the granting of Mr. Bollig's application.

Raymond Brothers
Raymond Brothers Motor Transportation Co. will also apply for a truck line extension to Brainerd. They have been operating nine years; two years under jurisdiction of the commission. R. J. Brown, a representative of the company, said that if the permit is granted they will establish a local office and warehouse, giving daily service from the Twin Cities through St. Cloud, Little Falls to Brainerd. Merchandise delivered to their Twin City truck terminals by 5 P. M. will arrive in Brainerd the following morning at 7 A. M.

Mr. Brown stated further that store door delivery will be effected at a big saving in rates over present rates. Raymond Brothers, he claimed, is one of the oldest and largest operators in the state, now operating 25 units consisting of 21 trucks and four trailers.

Mr. Raymond stated that Brainerd freight rates are now gauged by the Fargo-Watertown raised rate, and that the truck company rates would be based on the old Minnesota rail rate.

The menu consisted of fruit cocktail, roast chicken with dressing, mashed potatoes, baked corn sauce au gratin, radishes, olives, rolls and apple pie, coffee and very realistic looking cheese carrots.

After dinner, progressive bunco was played, and a person would only need to listen in to believe that it was a real party for the girls.

State Railroad and Warehouse Com-

Pleas

A hearing will be had at the court house on May 8 on the peti-

from the State Railroad & Ware-line between the Twin Cities and Brainerd, as well as between the Twin Cities and Pierz.

The application for this permit was made to the commission by Mr.
Bollig on March 16 of this year and on April 24 a similar application was filed by Raymond Brothers, whose headquarters are at St. Cloud.

Mr. Bollig is a resident of Pierz

At the last meeting of the Cham-

Raymond Brothers Motor Trans-

They have been operating nine

MRS. EDWIN CASS HOSTESS

Social Session Much Enjoyed Followed by Three Course
Dinner

The teachers of the Harrison building were royally entertained by the P. T. A. of that locality Tuesday, May 1.

A delightfully different atmosphere was created in one of the class rooms at the school, and the guests were ushered in to a beautifully decorated banquet table where covers were laid for eleven.

Mrs. Edwin Cass presided as hostess at the three course dinner served by several other capable ladies.
The menu consisted of fruit cocktail, roast chicken with dressing, mashed potatoes, baked corn sauce au gratin, radishes, olives, rolls and apple pie, coffee and very realistic looking cheese carrots.

After dinner, progressive bunco was played, and a person would only need to listen in to believe that it was a real party for the girls.

After several hours of pleasure, the guests departed with a unanimous vote of thanks to the hostesses.

Profit in Pine Seedlings

The North Carolina conservation service reports success from the venture of furnishing pine seedlings to farmers. A Johnson county farmer planted 350 long-leaf pine seedlings, with a loss of only 11. Similar reports show that the long-leaf pine may be regarded as a crop.

"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS
Sweet Springs Inn is the scene of an early morning duel over a miniature of Betsy Patterson. Her French tutor, La Vert, wins the duel and the miniature from Preston, who boasted that Betsy had given it to him. Strolling in the woods, La Vert meets Betsy, who has been wading in the stream on a dare. He is silent when she chides him for his lack of ambition. Later he is discharged for insolence by her father. Returning to the Inn, barefoot, Betsy overhears her aunt complaining of her unladylike conduct to her father.

"That's not the point," her father's voice came booming along the hallway, interrupted now and again by the softer tones of Miss Massenbird. "Am I never to have a moment's peace in this disgusting place!"

"Oh, dear, it's started now, all right," Betsy murmured to herself. Hastily she ran to the bench along the wall of the portico and began to struggle with her stockings. But the voices were coming closer and closer. "Oh, oh," she breathed. "Battles in the air, and I'm the enemy." She gave up the idea of trying to put on the stockings, and gathered them up in a little bunch and pushed them in her shoes.

"Where is she? Where is she? Where's Betsy?" The Major demanded loudly, stomping out onto the porch, followed by Miss Massenbird.

"Here I am, father," Betsy called in a voice that dripped honey, and hastily thrust the shoes and stockings behind her back. "Oh, there you are, Miss," Patterson stamped over towards the bench where Betsy, smiling radiantly, had esconced herself. "And now will you explain—"

"My father, what a florid complexion you have this morning," Betsy regarded her father with the most innocent of expressions. "Well, of all the brazen, impudent—put on your stockings at once, Miss!" The Major glowered down at Betsy's feet. "If I were a young woman I would be ashamed to show myself—indeed I would. Traipsing about the country in that disgraceful manner!"

"But you're not a young woman—so you aren't ashamed," Betsy returned impudently, smiling up at her father with mocking eyes. "Betsy!" Miss Massenbird threw properly shocked hands up and shook her head.

"Well," Betsy turned on her aunt and pouted most convincingly. "If I were an old man I'd be ashamed to be scolding my only daughter for rising early and trying to economize on leather." She stuck out a pink-toed foot and regarded it gravely, and then looked from her father to her aunt, her head on one side, her eyes twinkling.

"What!" Patterson exploded. "Now, young lady, I'll have no more of such nonsense. It's preposterous! It's—it's—" he puffed and bellowed, and swallowed his words, much to Betsy's inward amusement.

"I'm shocked!" Miss Massenbird put in severely. "I'm shocked and horrified! To think that a niece of mine could do such a thing. But it's just as I've said, William," she turned on the Major and shook her finger warningly. "Just as I've said. It's those French ways—they're not our ways. I never did hold with them. They have no sense of decency, no moral character—no—no—" she sputtered almost as much as had the Major, and ended lamely by repeating, "I'm shocked!"

"Nonsense," Betsy returned with some asperity. "You're easily shocked. All your life you've been thinking in a single bed!"

Well to Remember
"Fame is a bubble," quoted the Wise Guy. "Nevertheless it is just as well to let somebody else do your blowing for you," suggested the Simple Mug.

America's Pantry
No one who has munched a bread crust or demolished a plate of cereal could ever be lonesome in Minneapolis. —Woman's Home Companion.

"Horror!" Miss Massenbird sank back into the nearest chair and began searching for her smelling salts. "Oh, dear! Oh, dear! To think that things should ever come to such a pass." She sniffed her salts violently and fanned herself with the little black fan that she kept in her "indispensable" for just such emergencies. And, thanks to Betsy, the salts and the fan were kept in fairly constant use.

"Betsy!" Patterson boomed. "This is worse and worse." He towered over his daughter, his apoplectic temper quite out of control. "I do not want to hear another word. Not another word but put those stockings on at once, Miss, at once! Do you hear me?"

"All right, then, but don't you look," Betsy fumbled around and drew forth her shoes and stockings and this time succeeded in getting them on in some manner or other while her father paced up and down, swearing under his breath.

"There, there, now," Betsy rose from the bench, the offending shoes and stockings at last set to rights. "Will you two never stop quarrelling. It's perfectly dreadful to hear you. Come now, kiss and make up like good children." She stood between the two irate guardians of her welfare, smiling as calmly and as happily as though nothing had ever happened.

"See here, Miss, listen to me," Patterson began again, shaking his finger violently in Betsy's face. "Not another word, father. I simply won't listen. Betsy caught the warning finger and drew the Major's hand within her arm. "Not another word until you two kiss and are friends again. It's really a fine example you are to me. Come, Aunt Ellen," she drew Miss Massenbird from her chair and joined her hand to that of the Major's.

"This may be all very well, Miss," Patterson began again, though somewhat mollified, "but don't think you have at all altered my plans. No, Miss, back home you go today, and no more of this French."

"What!" Why, there are hundreds of French tutors in Finland," Betsy laughed. "Better a hundred at Baskmore than this one at the Springs," the Major snapped.

"But, father," Betsy protested. "No, I have been the butt too long," Patterson snapped, ignoring his daughter's pleas. "Ellen," he turned to Miss Massenbird, "go and tell Ettie to pack the boxes."

"Yes, William," she replied meekly, and turned towards the entrance of the hotel.

"Oh, no, please, Aunt Ellen," Betsy begged. "Father, I just won't have it!" She stamped a dainty foot, small and slender in its heeled slipper of soft black kid. "You know it ruins my gowns every time they have to be packed."

"Your gowns, indeed, Miss," Betsy's aunt turned from her errand with a withering glance of scorn at her niece's morning dress, so scant in comparison to her own voluminous skirts. "For all the clothes you wear, you might as well pack nothing at all. I cannot understand the lack of modesty in the young people of today. Why, when I was a girl, if anyone had so much as seen me displaying my—my person in such clothes I would have died of shame. It all comes from this French influence," she sniffed.

"But, Aunt Ellen, it's the style," Betsy defended herself. "Why, everyone wears dresses like this nowadays."

"They may in France," Miss Massenbird smoothed down her skirts and preened her petticoated propriety. "But that is no reason why our girls should follow such an outlandish custom."

"Why, Auntie, even Josephine, the wife of the great Napoleon, wears dresses just like this," Betsy sassed.

"Hmph!" Miss Massenbird sniffed. "And I have heard that they do say she's no better than she ought to be."

"Well, you know yourself that this dress was copied from the one in 'The Ladies European Magazine'."

"There, William," Miss Massenbird turned in triumph to her young brother-in-law, "what did I tell you. It's the influence of these terrible books that come from the continent. And you allow them to be brought into your very house. I, William, for one, they drew her self up haughtily. 'do not hold with such nonsense, and I'm surprised that you allow your own daughter to dress and behave in such an unladylike manner. I don't know what the young people are coming to, nowadays.'"

"Well, I can't see how hoop-skirts strengthened your morals, Auntie," Betsy returned slyly. (To be continued.)

DAIRY

DAIRY INCOME IS MOST CONSTANT

Gross cash income to farmers from the sale of dairy products has been more stable during the past eight years than the gross cash income from any other department of agriculture, according to figures which have been analyzed by V. R. Wertz of the Ohio agricultural experiment station, working with the rural economics department of the Ohio State university.

Wertz has studied the gross cash income of agriculture as an index of farm prosperity which is more reliable than unit price indexes, because it shows the volume of business done. His statistics are based upon an index of 100, which is the average gross cash income from the principal sources, in 1924, 1925 and 1926.

On this basis the dairying income started in 1920 at 147 and dropped with all other sources of income, in 1921 to 97, which was a shorter drop than was shown by any other group of commodities, and was seven points above the total gross cash income.

In 1922 there was a further drop to 91, which was three points above the figure for the total. It was above the index for every other department except the sale of meat animals. Dairying income soared in 1923 to 116, the highest figure reached by any important department of farm industry since 1920, and 21 points above the total income index. It dropped in 1924 to 103, but was still above all other figures. In 1925 the index was 97, three points below the figure for the total, and in 1926 dairying income belied its past performance by registering 99, the lowest of all the indices.

In 1926 all important departments of farming other than dairying showed peaks as compared with 1925. But in 1927, according to preliminary estimates, there was a sharp drop which was not shared by the dairying branch. While the index for the total income in 1927 was down to 91 points, dairying remained at 99, the point reached in 1926.

The average index for the eight-year period for dairying income was 108 points, while the total gross income average has been 102 points.

Income from the sale of dairy products makes up approximately 23 per cent of the total cash income of Ohio agriculture.

Bad Flavors and Odors in Milk Due to Weeds

Bad flavors and odor in milk and cream are common in spring due to wild onions and other weeds in pastures. Taking the cows off pasture at least three hours before milking is advised as a preventive measure. Even if the pasture contains no wild onions, sudden change to grass in the spring is apt to develop bad odors in milk. Some additional feed should be given when the pasture season opens. The grass is short and it does not at first provide sufficient nourishment to maintain the milk flow. A small amount of grain and hay will pay well until grass has made a good growth.—John Tolliver, Deputy State Dairy Commissioner, Colorado Agricultural College.

Keep Calves in Dry Lot Until They Are Marketed

Calves which have been full fed on grain during the winter, with the intention of marketing them, ought not to be turned on pasture before they are shipped. These calves should be fat enough so that they can be finished in the feedlot and marketed by the first of June. If they are turned on grass for a few weeks they will not make as good gains as in the feedlot. Changing from dry-lot feeding to pasture causes the calves to scour somewhat and consequently their gains will not be as good as they will be if kept in the dry lot until ready to ship to market.

Get Rid of Cows Giving Very Slimy or Ropy Milk

Milk drawn from cows affected with a bacterial udder trouble, known as garget, is sometimes called ropy milk, it is merely very slimy. It is almost impossible to strain slimy milk through cheesecloth. A cow may contract it from an udder bruise, by lying on a cold floor, or from faulty feeding. Some cows have the trouble frequently. In such a case it is best to get rid of them. Others have it only occasionally and are cured by cutting down the feed and giving them a dose of epsom salts and a teaspoonful of salt peter in the feed each day for two or three days.

Insufficient Pay

When some people get their check from the creamery they are apt to look on both sides of it, for they wonder if it is sufficient to pay for the feed that the cows have eaten. The resulting effect of this idea usually takes effect in either one of two forms: they either change the market place for their cream or they try to economize on the feed that is consumed by the cows. Some cows that are star boarders should be put into the fattening pen.

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

Sweet Springs Inn is the scene of an early morning duel over a miniature of Betsy Patterson. Her French tutor, La Vert, wins the duel and the miniature from Preston, who boasted that Betsy had given it to him. Strolling in the woods, La Vert meets Betsy, who has been waiting in the stream on a dare. He is silent when she challenges him for his lack of ambition. Later he is discharged for insolence by her father. Returning to the Inn, barefoot, Betsy overhears her aunt complaining of her unladylike conduct to her father.

"That's not the point," her father's voice came booming along the hallway, interrupted now and again by the softer tones of Miss Massenbird. "Am I never to have a moment's peace in this disgusting place!"

"Oh, dear, it's started now, all right," Betsy murmured to herself. Hastily she ran to the bench along the wall of the portico and began to struggle with her stockings. But the voices were coming closer and closer. "Oh, oh," she breathed. "Battles in the air, and I'm the enemy." She gave up the idea of trying to put on the stockings, and gathered them up in a little bunch and pushed them in her shoes.

"Where is she? Where is she? Where's Betsy?" The Major demanded loudly, stomping out onto the porch, followed by Miss Massenbird.

"I'll have no more such nonsense."

"Here I am, father," Betsy called in a voice that dripped honey, and hastily thrust the shoes and stockings behind her back.

"Oh, there you are, Miss," Patterson stamped over towards the bench where Betsy, smiling radiantly, had esconced herself. "And now will you explain—"

"My father, what a florid complexion you have this morning," Betsy regarded her father with the most innocent of expressions.

"Well, of all the brazen, impudent—put on your stockings at once, Miss!" The Major glowered down at Betsy's feet. "If I were a young woman I would be ashamed to show myself—indeed I would. Traipsing about the country in that disgraceful manner!"

"But you're not a young woman—so you aren't ashamed," Betsy returned impudently, smiling up at her father with mocking eyes. "Betsy!" Miss Massenbird threw properly shocked hands up and shook her head.

"Well," Betsy turned on her aunt and pouted most convincingly. "If I were an old man I'd be ashamed to be scolding my only daughter for rising early and trying to economize on leather." She stuck out a pink-toed foot and regarded it gravely, and then looked from her father to her aunt, her head on one side, her eyes twinkling.

"What?" Patterson exploded. "Now, young lady, I'll have no more of such nonsense. It's preposterous! It's—it's—" he puffed and bellowed, and swallowed his words, much to Betsy's inward amusement.

"I'm shocked!" Miss Massenbird put in severely. "I'm shocked and horrified! To think that a niece of mine could do such a thing. But it's just as I've said, William," she turned on the Major and shook her finger warningly, "just as I've said. It's those French ways—they're not our ways. I never did hold with them. They have no sense of decency, no moral character—no—no—" she sputtered almost as much as had the Major, and ended lamely by repeating, "I'm shocked!"

"Nonsense," Betsy returned with some asperity. "You're easily shocked. All your life you've been thinking in a single bed!"

DAIRY INCOME IS MOST CONSTANT

Gross cash income to farmers from the sale of dairy products has been more stable during the past eight years than the gross cash income from any other department of agriculture, according to figures which have been analyzed by V. R. Wertz of the Ohio agricultural experiment station, working with the rural economics department of the Ohio State university.

Wertz has studied the gross cash income of agriculture as an index of farm prosperity which is more reliable than unit price indicates, because it shows the volume of business done. His statistics are based upon an index of 100, which is the average gross cash income from the principal sources, in 1924, 1925 and 1926.

On this basis the dairying income started in 1920 at 147 and dropped with all other sources of income, in 1921 to 97, which was a shorter drop than was shown by any other group of commodities, and was seven points above the total gross cash income.

In 1922 there was a further drop to 91, which was three points above the figure for the total. It was above the index for every other department except the sale of meat animals. Dairying income soared in 1923 to 116, the highest figure reached by any important department of farm industry since 1920, and 21 points above the total income index. It dropped in 1924 to 103, but was still above all other figures. In 1925 the index was 97, three points below the figure for the total, and in 1926 dairying income belied its past performance by registering 99, the lowest of all the indices.

In 1926 all important departments of farming other than dairying showed peaks as compared with 1925. But in 1927, according to preliminary estimates, there was a sharp drop which was not shared by the dairying branch. While the index for the total income in 1927 was down to 91 points, dairying remained at 99, the point reached in 1926.

The average index for the eight-year period for dairying income was 108 points, while the total gross income average has been 102 points.

Income from the sale of dairy products makes up approximately 23 per cent of the total cash income of Ohio agriculture.

Bad Flavors and Odors

in Milk Due to Weeds

Bad flavors and odor in milk and cream are common in spring due to wild onions and other weeds in pastures. Taking the cows off pasture at least three hours before milking is advised as a preventive measure.

Even if the pasture contains no wild onions, sudden change to grass in the spring is apt to develop bad odors in milk. Some additional feed should be given when the pasture season opens. The grass is short and it does not at first provide sufficient nourishment to maintain the milk flow. A small amount of grain and hay will pay well until grass has made a good growth.—John Toliver, Deputy State Dairy Commissioner, Colorado Agricultural College.

Keep Calves in Dry Lot

Until They Are Marketed

Calves which have been full fed on grain during the winter, with the intention of marketing them, ought not to be turned on pasture before they are shipped. These calves should be fat enough so that they can be finished in the feedlot and marketed by the first of June. If they are turned on grass for a few weeks they will not make as good gains as in the feedlot. Changing from dry-lot feeding to pasture causes the calves to scour somewhat and consequently their gains will not be as good as they will be if kept in the dry lot until ready to ship to market.

Get Rid of Cows Giving

Very Slimy or Ropy Milk

Milk drawn from cows affected with a bacterial udder trouble, known as garget, is sometimes called ropy in quality, it is merely very slimy. It is almost impossible to strain slimy milk through cheesecloth. A cow may contract it from an udder bruise, by lying on a cold floor, or from faulty feeding. Some cows have the trouble frequently. In such a case it is best to get rid of them. Others have it only occasionally and are cured by cutting down the feed and giving them a dose of epsom salts and a teaspoonful of saltpeter in the feed each day for two or three days.

Insufficient Pay

When some people get their check from the creamery they are apt to look on both sides of it, for they wonder if it is sufficient to pay for the feed that the cows have eaten. The resulting effect of this idea usually takes effect in either one of two forms: they either change the market place for their cream or they try to economize on the feed that is consumed by the cows. Some cows that are star boarders should be put into the fattening pen.
